

Matthew McManus

We just wanted to thank you so much for all your help over the last three years with Matthew. He had such a great team and we will miss you all.

Matthew's first day of school was, as predicted, rough. But, he has gotten better every day since. His teacher sends daily notes and the last one mentioned how he giggled almost all day long. He has also found a girlfriend—an older 5 year old girl. They try to hold hands in their wheelchairs 😊

School seems to tire him out pretty good. He has been sleeping nicely, only a few hiccups here and there. Most nights he is out by 11 and we wake him up about 7; not too shabby, since we used to pray for 4 hours of sleep. He loves the school bus and they think he is just the cutest thing ever!

So, the transition has been going well.

We will forever be grateful to everyone at Northeast Arc Early Intervention for all the love and support we received. On many occasions, one or more members of our team came to doctors' appointments to make sure we understood any technical info and to make known any and all capabilities Matthew has that may not be immediately apparent.

Our family was truly blessed with this outstanding team.
